With two EPs, one album, and several singles under their belt, the German four piece Bleeding Out The Rage made themselves a name in the Swabian underground and as an event band.

The quartet's roots are in metalcore, however, with their recent release they show us a surprising new side.

Their most successful output so far is a heavily grooving cover version of the very popular track „Satellite“, best known as Germany's winning entry at 2010's Eurovision Song Contest.

BLEEDING OUT THE RAGE are

Falk - Main Vocals, Rhythm Guitar

Thomas - Lead Guitar, Backing Vocals

Conny - Bass, Backing Screams

Marlon - Drums
