

SYMBIOTIC LAB

Bandinfo

The band Symbiotic Lab was founded in 2004 by the friends Axl Böhm, Torsten Metzger and Frank Zeh in Pforzheim, Baden-Württemberg, Germany. From the beginning, the three artists considered their task in revolutionizing the music scene with an innovative symbiosis of various musical styles.

Composing and interpreting their pieces, the musicians of Symbiotic Lab consciously avoid sequencing any of the instruments, which, from the perspective of the artists, is absolutely essential for the preservation of the band concept - the musical symbiosis of man and machine. Hence in the songs of Symbiotic Lab, in spite of the electronic focus, all entries, melodies and solos are always played live and not interpreted by a sequencer. The music of Symbiotic Lab skilfully abolishes the borders of different styles of music and thus delights a great deal of music fans from different scenes.

The instrumentation consists of synthesizers, a groovebox, an electric guitar, percussions and a significant voice. The result is a manton, neo-day soundnetwork of electronic club beats, drifting synth grooves, marching percussions, lifting spheres and an extravagant voice. Several bases from the fields Electro, EBM, Techno, Metal, Industrial an Trip-Hop merge into a symbiosis of man, technology and spirit

Musicans:

Axl Böhm – Guitar

Torsten Metzger – Synthesizer

Frank Zeh – Voice, Groovebox, Percussions
